

The Red House: Almost A Memoir

The Red House is for those who yearn to relive the old days and for those who wished they could. A family comedy thats a cross between Little House on the Prairie and The Cosby Show with a whole lot of Hee Haw trucking mud right down the middle! Flying chickens, resilient roaches, humiliating hooptys, crazy relatives and runaway mules are just some of the hilarious hi-jinks the Douglas family get up to in a bid to get back to the land and escape modern life in the 1980s. The country... Country housing: The Red House had roaches. Long, flat brown oneswith wings. We didnt know they could fly until we were having supper one day. Country fashion: If I stepped wide enough maybe the panty hose would stay up until I could get to the bathroom. Country entertainment: Grab that skinny one in the corner. He oughta fly real good. Country relatives: Watch yourself, boy! We still payin off your rabies shot. Country vacations: You brought your own housing...and food and shampoo and towels and sheets. Country revivals: We gonna start promptly at seven oclock, so be sure to take care of all your bodily needs and functions beforehand. Country shopping: Dont steal nothin and dont sit on the toilet. Country dining at its best: The day he mentioned stewed possum, Mama told him, Dont even think about puttin somethin that nasty in my pot. We may be country but we aint that country.
